Introduction

Over the past decade, members and leaders of the Yale University community have worked actively and continuously to strengthen Yale's programs to address and prevent sexual misconduct. The semi-annual reports of complaints of sexual misconduct, which have been published since January of 2012, are intended to support that engagement by increasing community awareness of our policies and procedures, and by facilitating community members' access to resources that provide support, advice and accommodation.

The current report—the sixteenth that we have published—presents information in both statistical and descriptive formats regarding 169 complaints that were brought to the attention of Title IX Coordinators, the Yale Police Department, or the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct between January 1, 2019 and June 30, 2019, as well as the actions the university took to address those complaints. It also provides updates on seven complaints that were first presented in previous semi-annual reports.

Underlying the summaries and statistics in this report are the very real experiences of members of our community, and we make every effort to protect the privacy of those individuals. Consequently, the report is intended to provide useful general information about Yale's procedures and resources but can offer only a limited view of complex circumstances of the specific complaints and the many factors that lead to decisions about discipline and other responsive actions.

As I have noted previously, the semi-annual reports capture only those complaints that are brought to the University's attention. While we are hopeful that the continued increase in the number of complaints described in the semi-annual reports (see Figure 1 on page 3) reflects increasing community awareness of University procedures and resources, we know from both national statistics and our own that many incidents of sexual misconduct are never reported. In order to better understand students' experiences of sexual misconduct and to gather information about the community's awareness of Yale's resources and observations regarding campus climate, we partnered in the spring of 2019 with 32 peer institutions and the Association of American Universities to conduct our second Campus Sexual Climate Survey (AAU Survey). I look forward to sharing the 2019 AAU Survey findings with the Yale community later this fall.

The results of the 2015 AAU Survey provided a strong focus for community reflection and a powerful stimulus for community action. For example, in partnership with students, faculty and staff across the campus, we clarified our communications through website enhancements and in-person sessions about University resources and procedures; we modified and expanded bystander intervention workshops to include the graduate and professional student and faculty and staff communities; and we created an on-line training module to ensure everyone in the community is familiar with our policies and resources and with the basics of bystander intervention. Most importantly, an ever-growing number of community members have engaged us in conversation about ways to enhance our procedures and resources and to make meaningful, positive changes in our campus climate. I am confident that the 2019 AAU Survey findings will provide additional opportunities for community conversation and action.

In closing, I must once again extend my gratitude and admiration for the individuals whose commitment and expertise guide and support the University's initiatives to address sexual misconduct and to the many members

Guide to this Report

This report includes both statistical and descriptive summaries of the complaints brought forward within this reporting period (January 1 – June 30, 2019) which are organized according to the office or committee that addressed the complaint most recently and/or definitively: the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct (UWC), the Title IX coordinators, and the Yale Police Department (YPD).

The statistical summaries present the complaints by complainant affiliation, by respondent affiliation, by gender configuration, and lastly by the venue through which the complaint was primarily addressed. Throughout the narrative portion of the report you will find cases that engaged more than one of these venues, showing the close coordination of the UWC, the Title IX coordinators, and the YPD in working with complainants to best meet their needs.

While intended to be broadly informative, the report does have limitations. Because of privacy obligations, the report cannot fully convey the variety and complexity of circumstances associated with cases that may appear similar in the brief narrative descriptions. Likewise, the report assigns complaints to general categories such as “sexual assault” and “sexual harassment” that encompass broad ranges of behavior. For example, Yale University defines “sexual assault” as “any kind of nonconsensual sexual contact, including rape, groping, or any other nonconsensual sexual touching.” We have embedded links to key definitions and terminology in the report (which also appear at the end of this report), so that readers can understand what behaviors may be included in any category. We have also included links to Frequently Asked Questions and to hypothetical case scenarios, which illustrate Yale’s definition of consent. Readers can find comprehensive information about Yale’s policies, definitions and procedures in the guide “Preventing and Responding to Sexual Misconduct: Building a Climate of Safety and Respect at Yale.”

Statistical Summary of Complaintsⁱ

The statistics below include all complaints of sexual misconduct brought forward within this reporting period (January 1 – June 30, 2019), regardless of when the alleged events occurred. To avoid duplication, the tables and charts below do not include complaints presented as updates in this report since these complaints were already included in the statistical summaries of previous reports (information about the updates to these complaints can be found on pages 8 and 18 of this report). The complaints of sexual misconduct are sorted in broad categories (e.g., sexual assault, intimate partner violence, sexual harassment) based on the complainant’s allegations. Complaints involving more than one allegation of sexual misconduct are listed only once. The complainant is the person who reported having experienced misconduct, or, in the case of third-party complaints, the person who is reported to have experienced it. The respondent is the person (or persons) alleged to have committed the misconduct.

ⁱ The sexual assault data in this report will not correspond to Yale’s annual report required under the federal Clery Act because this report uses a more expansive definition of sexual assault and includes cases from a broader geographic jurisdiction than in the Clery report.

In providing a range of formal and informal options for pursuing complaints, the University seeks to meet the varied needs of potential complainants. Whenever possible, it is the complainant who decides whether or not to pursue a complaint, and in what venue. In certain unusual circumstances, such as those involving risks to the safety of individuals and/or the community, the University will bring matters to a formal hearing independently of the wishes of an individual complainant. The choice of an informal process does not imply the matter is less serious than those matters pursued through formal processes, nor does it preclude the complainant from choosing to bring a formal complaint at a later date.

Descriptive Summaries of Complaints

The descriptive summaries of complaints are organized in tables below according to the office or committee that reviewed and addressed the complaints, i.e., the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct (UWC), the Title IX coordinators, and the Yale Police Department (YPD).

Although a complaint may be brought to multiple venues, each complaint is described only once in this report, based on which venue primarily addressed the complaint. The UWC, Title IX coordinators and YPD routinely collaborate and coordinate their activities to ensure that complaints are resolved promptly and equitably. All reports of sexual misconduct brought to the YPD, for example, are reviewed by the University Title IX Coordinator; similarly, all reports of possible criminal activity brought to the Title IX coordinators (including those reported via the UWC) are shared with the YPD.

University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct: Formal Complaints

The following complaints were pursued through formal resolution with the UWC. In every case, the complainant was provided information about all options for pursuing complaints – including formal, informal, and criminal processes – as well as information about support resources such as the Sexual Harassment and Assault Response & Education Center (SHARE). See the UWC Procedures for more information. Also see page 23 of this report for an explanation of commonly-used terminology.

Title IX Coordinators

The following complaints were brought forward to either the University Title IX Coordinator or a Deputy Title IX coordinator (any of whom are referred to here as “Title IX coordinator”). The Title IX coordinators do not conduct formal hearings. However, depending on the affiliation of the parties, they may investigate complaints to the degree possible and work with the complainant, the respondent, and, where appropriate, the respondent’s supervisor to achieve a resolution of the complaint, which may include sanctions for respondents who are staff members and remedies and ongoing accommodations for the complainant. They may also put in place measures to support and protect the complainant. In making their determinations and recommendations, the Title IX coordinators strive to comply with the complainant’s wishes for resolution while ensuring that the University provides a safe and nondiscriminatory environment for all members of the Yale community. See the Title IX website for more information. Also see page 23 of this report for an exploration of commonly-used terminology.

During this reporting period (January 1 – June 30, 2019), there were 146 cases brought forward to a Title IX coordinator. In addition, below are updates to complaints that were reported as pending in a previous report.

SECTION I.
While the specific actions may vary from case to case, Title IX coordinators respond to complaints by addressing any immediate concerns a complainant may have, connecting complainants and respondents with appropriate resources, ensuring that complainants are fully aware of the options available for further action, and helping to facilitate those actions. In the following complaints, the complainant chose to pursue a resolution of the complaint with a Title IX coordinator. In some cases, the complainant requested that the Title IX coordinator facilitate accommodations or other actions. In other cases, the coordinator identified measures that might be taken (e.g., departmental training, academic/workplace accommodations) without revealing to the respondent that a report has been made and consulted with the complainant prior to implementing these measures. In these cases, the complainant was informed that no direct action can be taken against a respondent without providing notice of the complaint to the respondent. In every case, the complainant was provided information about all options for pursuing complaints – including formal, informal, and criminal processes – as well as information about support resources such as the Sexual Harassment and Assault Response & Education (SHARE) Center.

SECTION II.

In some cases, after consulting with a Title IX coordinator regarding all options for pursuing complaints – including formal, informal, and criminal processes – and receiving information about support resources such as the Sexual Harassment and Assault Response & Education (SHARE) Center, the complainant decides not to pursue the complaint any further and requests that no action be taken by the coordinator. In these cases, the Title IX coordinator will inform the complainant that a complaint can be pursued at a later time and will follow up with the complainant to check on the complainant’s wellbeing. Except in cases of acute threat of harm to the complainant or to the campus community, the Title IX coordinator will not take any action without the complainant’s agreement.

The following table provides a statistical summary of those complaints where the complainant chose not to pursue the complaint and the coordinator took no further action. The complainants involved always have the option to pursue further action, in which case descriptive updates will be provided in future reports.

SECTION III.

In some cases, information about incidents of sexual misconduct comes to a Title IX coordinator from a third party, such as an administrator, a friend of those involved, or a witness. When possible, the coordinator will reach out to the potential complainant to offer support and to discuss resources and options. In many cases, the identities of one or both parties are not provided. Some complainants choose not to engage in further discussion with the coordinator or provide any additional information. The coordinator may explore whether there are any measures that might be taken without involving the complainant or revealing to the respondent that a report has been made and will attempt to consult with the complainant prior to taking any action. Except in cases of acute threat of harm to the complainant or to the campus community, the Title IX coordinator will not take any action without the complainant’s agreement.

The following table provides a statistical summary of those complaints where the complainant chose not to engage with the Title IX coordinator and the coordinator took no further action. The complainants involved always have the option to pursue further action, in which case descriptive updates will be provided in future reports.

Brief Definitions

The following are definitions for the specific terms Yale uses in this Report to categorize the behaviors that would constitute sexual misconduct under Yale's policies. For more information on Yale's sexual misconduct policies and definitions, go to the Sexual Misconduct Response website.

Sexual assault is any kind of nonconsensual sexual contact, including rape, groping, sexual penetration (which is the insertion of a penis, finger or object into another person's vagina or anus), or any other nonconsensual sexual touching. ⁱⁱ

Sexual activity requires affirmative consent, which is defined as positive, unambiguous, and voluntary agreement to engage in specific sexual activity throughout a sexual encounter. Consent cannot be inferred from the absence of a "no"; a clear "yes," verbal or otherwise, is necessary. Consent to some sexual acts does not constitute consent to others, nor does past consent to a given act constitute present or future consent. Consent must be ongoing throughout a sexual encounter and can be revoked at any time.

Consent cannot be obtained by threat, coercion, or force. Agreement under such circumstances does not constitute consent.

Consent cannot be obtained from someone who is asleep or otherwise mentally or physically incapacitated, whether due to alcohol, drugs, or some other condition. A person is mentally or physically incapacitated when that person lacks the ability to make or act on considered decisions to engage in sexual activity. Engaging in sexual activity with a person whom you know -- or reasonably should know -- to be incapacitated ⁱⁱ The sexual assault data in this report will not correspond to Yale's annual report required under the federal Clery Act because this report uses a more expansive definition of sexual assault and includes cases from a broader geographic jurisdiction than in the Clery report.

constitutes sexual misconduct. For illustrations of Yale’s consent definition, see the Sexual Misconduct Scenarios at <http://smr.yale.edu/>.

Intimate partner violence (IPV) occurs when a current or former intimate partner uses or threatens physical or sexual violence. IPV also may take the form of a pattern of behavior that seeks to establish power and control by causing fear of physical or sexual violence. Stalking may also constitute IPV.

Sexual harassment consists of unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature on or off campus, when: (1) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a condition of an individual's employment or academic standing; or (2) submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for employment decisions or for academic evaluation, grades, or advancement; or (3) such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or academic performance or creating an intimidating or hostile academic or work environment. Sexual harassment may be found in a single episode, as well as in persistent behavior. All members of the community are protected from sexual harassment, and sexual harassment is prohibited regardless of the sex or gender of the harasser.

Stalking is repeated or obsessive unwanted attention directed toward an individual or group that is likely to cause alarm, fear, or substantial emotional distress. Stalking may take many forms, including following, lying in wait, monitoring, and pursuing contact. Stalking may occur in person or through a medium of communication, such as letters, e-mail, text messages, or telephone calls. In some circumstances, two instances of such behavior may be sufficient to constitute stalking.

Other includes a range of prohibited behaviors that do not fall into the categories above. Examples include voyeurism, audio-visual recording of sexual activity without consent, retaliation, and violations of the Policy on Teacher-Student Consensual Relations.

Terminology Commonly Used in this Report

“UWC formal complaint”: Formal resolution of a complaint through the UWC involves an investigation by an external fact-finder, a hearing, adjudication, and possible disciplinary sanctions. See the UWC Procedures.

“A Title IX Coordinator brought a formal complaint”: Under certain circumstances, the Title IX Coordinator of the University or any Yale school may bring a complaint to the UWC. Generally, a Title IX Coordinator may file a complaint in situations on behalf of someone who experienced sexual misconduct but who cannot take the formal role of a complainant. In certain circumstances involving a serious threat to the University community, a Title IX coordinator may bring a complaint to the UWC when there is evidence that the University’s policy on sexual misconduct has been violated and the Title IX Coordinator’s intervention is needed to ensure that the matter reaches the UWC. See the UWC procedures for more information.

“The Title IX Coordinator investigated”: An investigation by a Title IX Coordinator generally includes, but is not limited to: interviewing the complainant and respondent, interviewing any witnesses or other parties with knowledge of the alleged conduct, and collecting documentation (including email or other communications) relevant to the complaint. Upon reviewing the evidence gathered, The Title IX Coordinator determines whether a violation of University policy occurred, whether any actions should be taken, and recommends disciplinary action, if warranted.

“Sufficient evidence to support the allegations”: The UWC and the Title IX Coordinators apply the “preponderance of the evidence” standard (i.e., whether it is more likely than not) to determine, based on the evidence gathered during the investigation, whether the alleged conduct occurred and, if so, whether it violates any University policies.

“The respondent was counseled on appropriate conduct”: In some cases, a Title IX Coordinator, or an administrator working in consultation with the Title IX Coordinator, will meet with the respondent to review the complaint and the University’s definitions and policies, discuss and affirm expected behaviors, and warn the respondent about possible consequences for violations of the University sexual misconduct policies.

“No-contact restrictions (or agreement)”: In all UWC formal complaints, no-contact restrictions are put in place for the duration of the UWC review. In cases resolved through a Title IX Coordinator, no-contact restrictions are made by agreement of the parties. In some cases, a respondent is issued a warning to cease all forms of contact (including physical, verbal, and electronic) with the complainant, which may also limit access to all or certain parts of campus.

“Provided the complainant with information on safety and victim services”: The YPD has a Sensitive Crimes & Support Coordinator who assists those affected by sexual misconduct and can help complainants connect with SHARE or other University offices, coordinate interim safety measures, provide safety planning, and serve as a liaison with victims’ assistance services. See the YPD website for more information.

“The case is pending”: In the case of a formal complaint under review by the UWC, “pending” means that the review of the complaint is still in process and the result will not be reported until a final decision on the complaint has been issued. In the case of a complaint brought to a Title IX coordinator, “pending” means that the resolution of the complaint is still in process, e.g., the Title IX coordinator is investigating the complaint or the complainant is still evaluating options.
